DEDICATION

HERBERT LINCOLN SPENCER

Because his is the human understanding which radiates from the heart of our University to the outer circles of intellectual development,

Because to each of us, gathered from every part of the country, the warmth and simplicity of his home on campus symbolizes the home-life we have left,

Because of his tireless service to our University during these post war years of growth, and his selfless devotion in answering the expanding needs of Bucknell students, the staff and editors dedicate this 1947 edition of L'AGENDA to our beloved president, Herbert Lincoln Spencer.

To OUR PRESIDENT

Dr. Spencer pursues one of his many hobbies.

The end of a busy day.

The Spencers and Patty at home.

THROUGH THE YEAR . . .

The leaves were stabbed red and floated to the ground—over them fell the snow—now on the branches which they left are new leaves, green leaves—a year had passed.

1946-47 lies behind us.

A year is more than calendar months and days of the week—a college year more than two semesters. It is the class hour when thought is stimulated and we suddenly realize the power of the mind, the Wednesday morning at chapel when the sun strikes fully upon a face and for a second we feel the creation of nobility. It is growth, and joys experienced, and memories—memories as individual as are our two thousand students. Some recall the campus, the smell of burning leaves in fall and the newly warmed earth in spring. Another's memories are of the fraternity, the game, the dance, the pin. For all of us it is a vibrating memory of a year of growth. With the increased enrollment, the birth of Bucknell Village, and the new additions to the faculty has come a simultaneous enlarging of campus activities—our eight-page paper, a revitalized Radio Workshop, the appearance of new sororities and fraternities.

In these days passed lies the essence of those ahead. Some of this year's experiences will be of only passing value, many will become warm and living aspects of our personalities. The value of living simply and directly, the smile of a friend, that portion of illuminative knowledge each of us has gained—these will enrich our future.

1946-47. Not behind us—part of us. A year in which we grew in mind and spirit and learned to live more fully. A year enriched with images of people and places, bringing back the intangible warmth that is to us—Bucknell.

 in every case of the delight he feels in the figures, a sense of a feeling which he has shared with a thousand times in drawings, in his notes, his pictures, and certain of his own positions.

One feels the difference in going over a collection of the drawings themselves, over tapestries from them. Here is one where the line is fresh and quiet, even, like the movement of the male part as the comes into the room. It is repeated that the painter would tell his wife into the studio so that the night she has pleasure in some young figure that had made him see again the master of Greece. Here is a picture with two eyes and in such a way as the same movement, a young thought, a young, a humorous — turned an instant of light to play over the figure, and then he is whole, whole, and then he is whole, a young thing shows the power of applying shape to the body, body, the body and the power to control and that is not clear, it is the body

L'AGENDA RECORDS YEAR 101

L'AGENDA—1947—a year caught between two covers.

This year was a good year—to each one of us meaning something a little different—to each one of us important. It was to the task of capturing the individual memories in a general story of our year that we dedicated this book.

To catch the essence of nine months of living is not an easy task; to crystalize memories is even more difficult. We have tried to do this through the medium of pictures and print. The shot of the Winter Carnival looked back on years hence will bring with it the whole evening's fun—the gar-denia's smell, the late permission, the escort or one escorted. Through your eyes motionless faces will smile and bull sessions be relived. The static pictures of the campus become the paths walked on, the trees walked under.

Since September when we first crowded into the little room in the basement of Roberts Hall and got our assignments, we have been snapping pictures, writing, scratching out and re-writing. Around the desk of the editor has revolved a mad circle of assistant editors, business staff members and photographers—in this din a year book has been created. We give you the 1947 L'AGENDA—a story of "this year" for years to come.

We'll meet the deadline! . . . the budget—it balances! . . . more kodachromes! Barbara, Lynn, and Shiran daydream.

Trennie E. Eisley, the power behind us all, is our indispensable adviser.

BUCKNELLIAN BECOMES A HOME NEWSPAPER

"But who is Smoe?" was the question that was on everybody's lips every Thursday, and the guesses ran from editor to type setter . . .

Editorials printed about the "uncultured engineers" brought a stack of letters to the editor, and a professor's humorous rejoinder . . .

Because it was a revitalized paper, because it really was the voice of the student body, the Bucknellian became one of the most important unifying forces in an enlarged student body.

Eight pages were hardly enough to cover every news beat on the campus, and the expansion reached every section of the paper, which again printed Intercollegiate Press releases in addition to the Associated College Press services.

New features included a literary page, a veteran's information service, a radio log and a reorganized exchange service. And, to top it all, the gravure section of the Collegiate Digest was back.

With the paper reaching a record-breaking circulation, there was little trouble in finding advertising. Business Manager Vicky Reid, Advertising Manager Margaret Matthews and Circulation Manager William Marriott made the best of a good situation, keeping the accounts on the right side of the ledger.

After a year of singular achievement, Roger Haddon, first male editor since the war, turned over the editorial chair to Robert Sundy, previously managing editor. Key staff members included Tamara Gurvitch as News Editor; James Miller, Sports Editor; Daniel Burt, Feature Editor; Michael Nightingale, Photographer; Marjorie Myers, Society Editor, and Joyce Silver, Cartoonist.

Freshman spirits and hopes were kept on the up and up by the cheerful and understanding Juniors who lived with them. HONOR HOUSE BUZZES WITH ACTIVITY

Behind an unspectacular facade at 6th and Walker, lived 12 senior women, chosen at the close of their Junior Year as the most outstanding and deserving, to live in Honor House. The exterior of the old Owen's House might have deceived you by its rather lifeless and dreary appearance, but H. H. girls are undoubtedly among the most active and hardworking on campus. There was never a dull moment around Honor House and it did not take very long for the girls to feel like they lived in Grand Central Station, retiring to Hunt for moments of relaxation.

Serious studying and steady dating still left time for student teaching and plenty of horse play—from pigtailed and toothbrushes for the benefit of the new freshmen girls, to Halloween parties in the cellar, with plenty of obstacles for the unwary; to "Hi, Alums" signs over the door at Homecoming; to raiding the ice-box for the midnight snack.

Even though at times the girls must have wondered if their lives were their own, living in Honor House was still packed full of fun and an experience not one of them would have missed.

A quartet of Lorraine Kress, Tamara Gurvitch, and pianists Helen Klauder and Lois Miller gives an impromptu recital.

Bucknell's Alma Mater rang proudly in many an auditorium this year, wherever the Men's Glee Club made a stand in their record setting tours. With the revived Glee Club of last year as a foundation, Professor Harold E. Cook trained a vocal group of unusual ability, capable of thrilling the most exacting audience with their arrangements of old favorites "Erie Canal" and "Casey Jones".

As in the past, the big event was the tour between semesters in February. Singing before 15,000 people in their tour of the East, the Bucknell Men's Glee Club brought down the house in New York and Philadelphia. To add to the excitement, Business Manager Raymond Livingston arranged for a broadcast in New York.

HALLELUJAH!! The Messiah in a black and white study.

The Women's Glee Club of 80 girls had a busy year, what with the Christmas Chapel program, the spring program, trips to Harrisburg, Williamsport and Philadelphia. Mr. Moisa Bulboaca directed the group, assisted by Manager Elizabeth Diegel and Assistant Ellen Morrow, with Barbara Hillhouse as librarian.

"March, march on down the field" . . . headed for Memorial Stadium.

THE BAND MARCHES ON!

Just as thrilling as a long run down the gridiron with the crowd going wild, was the smart parade of the Bucknell Band at intermission, colors flying and majorettes stepping high, paying homage to the Orange and the Blue.

The band made its first appearance this season at the Penn State football game, and marched down the field during intermission of home games, fifty strong, led by Emily Luke and Dorothy Yawner, twirling their batons.

Later in the season came the concert of popular and modern music at the high school, then the final Spring concert, all under able Manager Curtis Clump.

SPIRIT RETURNS WITH BOOSTER CLUB

A pre-war feature revived last year, the Booster Club steadily increased in size and popularity. Organized by Torch and Scroll in 1939 for the purpose of promoting support for University activities, this year the Booster Club boasted a membership of approximately 1,000 students. The orange-and-blue-ribboned members helped recreate the Bucknell spirit which had suffered by the war years. Bucky the Bison, Bucknell's first mascot, and official ward of the Booster Club, was formally introduced to the student body at the Homecoming football game with Lafayette. Bucky showed his temperament by pulling his keepers all over the field. His total ignorance of the rule of football was attributed to his infancy.

The Booster Club successfully staged the "Harvest Hop", the first dance of the Fall term, and some really rousing pre-game rallies around the bonfire. One of the big factors in the Homecoming celebration was the excellent spirit of the rally, together with the band and the cheerleaders, held at Davis Gym.

The board of directors consisted of a representative group elected by the fraternities and sororities, the Student Campus Club, the Band, and Cheerleaders.

Officers for 1946-47 were Vito D'Amore, president; Jean McKernan, vice president; Kathryn Musson, secretary, and Tito Sabal, treasurer.

Chi Chi, the girls' commuters club, was kept very busy this year with its "adopted" Greek family. Led by Vice President Jeanne Grice, the girls combed their homes for clothes, tracked down hard-to-get items, and even gave a bridge benefit to make their family comfortable and happy. There were other activities to make the commuting girls feel more at home on the campus and to give them a sense of belonging . . . the annual tea for Senate and the House of Representatives, dinner at the Inn and the gay movie party afterwards, the hayride under the harvest moon, the picnic in the spring. Luncheon meetings, with President Doris Strassner presiding, were held twice monthly in the newly decorated club room in Hunt.

CURTAIN CALLS FOR C & D

Director George Naimark briefs the "Indians" before rehearsal.

Success, tragedy, and suspense were the keynotes for Cap and Dagger's '46-'47 agenda of three plays, "Ten Little Indians," "The Late George Apley," and "Arms and the Man." Success applied to all three, but tragedy and suspense played more than a walk-on part in "Ten Little Indians." Bruce Bassett, the leading man, developed acute appendicitis after the first night's performance, and George Burns took over the part, receiving praise for his impromptu performances.

"The Late George Apley," with Leon Gonzales as the leading man, received the most favorable comments heard by C. and D. in some time. The last minute arrival of the costumes from New York brought near-calamity to an outstanding performance.

A successful season was brought to a close with Margaret Kolhaas and George Burns co-starring in "Arms and the Man," followed by Cap and Dagger putting on excerpts from Shakespeare for the May Festival. Of interest to all was the growing fund for Bucknell's future "Little Theater" which is still mounting with each successful production.

IRC BROADENS PROGRAM SCOPE

1946 was a year of decision for the world, and the International Relations Club had to step lively to keep up with events. With its membership boosted by veterans who wanted to make sure that the soft peace years would not blot out the lessons learned at such a high price in human suffering and sacrifice; by students who wanted to dispel the idea that college was an ivory tower; by men and women vitally interested in international co-operation, and in religious and racial tolerance.

Besides sponsoring talks and lectures by such men as Andreas Shanke, Norwegian underground leader and Richard T. Baker, foreign correspondent in the Orient, I. R. C. sent delegates to a number of Conferences: Dorothy Gatterer and William Rubin to the Herald Tribune Forum; Stan Rondot and Mary Ann Chiesa to Vassar College, to the Current Events Conference; to the United Nations General Assembly at Lake Success, N. Y., to see the real thing in action over the Thanksgiving vacation; and to the Intercollegiate Model General Assembly of the United Nations at Swarthmore in early April.

There was plenty of activity all year on the campus too, with radio forums over WKOK in Sunbury, weekly newscasts and analyses over Bucknell's own WBRG, deputation teams sent to speak to groups outside the campus, and letters to congressmen for action on important legislation.

It was a good year for I. R. C., under the able presidency of Thomas Quigley and under the guidance of Dr. Cyrus Karraker, Faculty Adviser.

An IRC open meeting attracts a large intent audience for one of the group's excellent guest speakers.

Good leadership, excellent technical performance and improved facilities took Radio Workshop programs to every radio on the campus, and made WBRG an accepted part of campus life. On the air 38 hours a week, students could tune in on a wide variety of features, music and radio dramas suitable for every mood.

"Jam for Breakfast" started the day with lively music at seven a. m. and reminded the sleepy-eyed that eight-o'clocks waited for no one. "Music to Study By" eased the strain of nocturnal book-cracking. New studio rooms and new equipment lightened the strain for announcer, engineer and director too. A flock of new talent enabled Jeane Morgenthal to plan a number of new programs, among them an all-faculty program.

Radio Workshop's paper work was handled by Walter Noll, business manager; Gloria Child, advertising manager, and Audrey Johnson, office manager. Clint Marantz and Sara Titus ran the dramatics department. Charles Hafey directed special features, assisted by Carole Fox. Jane Farr was in charge of scripts, and Gladys Kurtz was musical director, with Betty Hoile as assistant. Jean Rolka handled publicity and Robert Miller was chief engineer.

C. A. LEADS

Unusual possibilities were manifested in the work undertaken by the Christian Association this year. In this new age, the C. A., through its program of worship study, and action, daily proved its ability to forge ahead and shoulder the responsibility of developing Christian youth. A member of the World Student Christian Federation and of the Student Christian Movement, the C. A. fulfilled the spiritual needs of all creeds on campus.

Its various councils were arranged to cover a wide and ever-expanding field. The Association maintained a religious equilibrium through its co-operative spirit and participation in church services of the various denominations, and through the work of the 9:30 Class. Practical aspects of Christianity were promoted and supported by the work of the Community Service, Christian Vocations, and Social Action Councils.

A new project started during the Fall semester was the Student Forum, which took the place of Student Church. Well-known speakers highlighted current problems of national and international scope, and the discussion periods that followed often grew heated when students asked questions and voiced their opinions. Through the World Fellowship Council students made international fellowship a tangible reality by supporting two scholarships at Judson College, Burma.

Responding to the great demand for a well-rounded recreational program, trips to Cowan, square dances, and picnics were weekly affairs. The work of all the councils was brought before the student body in "The Challenge," published by the Public Relations Council.

Members of the Executive Council aided in guiding the Association, but major decisions concerning the operation of the C. A. were made by the whole group which could vote in open Cabinet meetings.

Forrest Brown was General Secretary, and the advisory council was under the chairmanship of Harold Hayden, librarian.

Officers were John Wilbur, president; Helen Klauder and Jack Warden, vice presidents; Mary Ann Gregg, secretary, and Jesse Syme, treasurer.

Officers Howard Lonergan, president, Roger Haddon, and Robert Altemus hold a pre-meeting conference with ODK adviser, Dr. Walter Sauvain.

Founded nationally in 1914 and brought to Bucknell last spring by President Spencer and Professor Gregory, Omicron Delta Kappa replaced Torch and Scroll as the senior men's honorary. As membership was limited to 3% of the total male enrollment, only those whose contributions to the school were outstanding were elected.

The highly successful fun-packed Post-Exam Jubilee was an ODK project, and the men accustomed themselves to running Homecoming parades by helping to plan this year's; next year they will accept the whole responsibility.

President Howard Lonergan emphasized co-operation with Mortar Board in this, the first year of ODK's organization. The other officers were Robert Altemus, vice president, and Roger Haddon, treasurer. Dr. Walter Sauvain was faculty adviser.

Mortar Board is the leading senior women's honorary organization. Ten junior women were elected to this honorary last spring on the basis of leadership, scholarship, and service to the school. This year Mortar Board has been especially active with two new projects added to its regular duties. Monthly Monday Evening Coffee Hours for faculty and students were very successful experiments, and Bucknell's first pictorial calendar appeared this year under the sponsorship of Mortar Board. The proceeds from the sale of these calendars along with those of its snack bar went toward establishing a Mortar Board scholarship for a needy woman student, to be given annually. This year's officers were June Stott, President; Lois Miller, Vice President; Gloria Child, Secretary, and Jeane Morgenthal, Treasurer.

Inter-Fraternity Council assumed its old importance again this year with the reopening of the fraternity houses. Council spent a busy year organizing the largest rush week Bucknell fraternities have seen in a long time, planning the Homecoming parade floats, and making elaborate plans for houseparty week-end.

Composed of two representatives of each Greek organization and under the guidance of Dr. Tasker, the Council welcomed back representatives of chapters which have been inactive on campus for several years.

THE SPORT

With the return of football to the sporting scene on a major scale marking the rebirth of sports, Bison athletics stepped into the post-war world.

Although the baseball team started the ball rolling last Spring, it was the heavy schedules undertaken by the University during the past two semesters which really reflected the trend.

The grid and cage teams, with 9 and 19-game slates, respectively, faced some of the stiffest competition in the East. Soccer and boxing returned to the athletic agenda, after a wartime absence, and the Herd was represented on the mats by the first formal wrestling team. Track, golf and tennis were also listed on the expanding athletic program.

ING SCENE

New advancements were made this year under the guidance of the women's physical education department. First, the desire of Bucknell coeds to participate in intercollegiate sports was realized with the playday held at Dickinson Junior College. Another step forward by the gym department was the inauguration of the Blue Ribbon Riding Stables where many forms of the equestrian art were taught. The highlight of the year was the presentation of "Come to the Fair," a new and different May Day, organized, acted and enjoyed by the student body.

BISONS WIN THREE, DROP SIX

"Lose three, win three, lose three." Such a statement, made by toastmaster Thomas Richardson at the annual banquet, is a good resume of Bucknell's record on the gridiron last year. Toppled by the Big Red of Cornell in the season's opener, 21-0, the Bisons dropped consecutive frays to the Nittany Lions of Penn State, 48-6, and to the Mules from Muhlenberg in a torrential downpour, 6-0.

Shaking off the effects of these early season defeats, the Herd provided plenty of thunder for Buffalo's Homecoming celebration, and trampled the Bulls, 21-0. Some 12,000 jubilant fans jammed into Memorial Stadium at Homecoming to see the home team win, 29-0. Gettysburg was added to the string of victims, 19-0, in another home engagement.

Then the house of cards fell. Undefeated Delaware, boasting one of the longest winning streaks in the nation, snapped Bucknell's winning streak when the Blue Hens soared to a 27-14 triumph. Crippled from the Delaware game, the Bisons bowed to Temple, 27-6, as the Owl's passing attack showed the way to victory. The season's final, which found the Bisons facing a Rutgers team which had one of the best records in the East, saw Bucknell absorb a 25-0 loss.

Although manned by veterans, both of the gridiron and of the war, Coach Al Humphreys' charges failed to live up to early season hopes. A look at the difficult schedule, however, casts a different light on the subject. Cornell, for instance, scored 21 points against Army, the exact total it scored against Bucknell. Two opponents, Muhlenberg and Delaware, received bowl bids, and each won.

Facing a nineteen game schedule, one of the most difficult cards undertaken by the university in recent years, Bucknell's Bisons jumped off to a four game winning streak before being halted.

The Herd opened the season with a jubilant victory over arch-foe Penn State; posted a pair of Middle Atlantic League victories at the expense of Lehigh; tripped powerful Rutgers, but finally fell in a return match with the Nittany Lions.

Swinging back into a winning habit, the Bisons added American University and New York Maritime Academy to their string of victims before undertaking a disastrous road jaunt. The team dropped consecutive decisions to Rhode Island State, Muhlenberg, American University, Navy and Lafayette.

Recovering from the tailspin, the Bisons notched verdicts over Gettysburg and Temple before being stopped by Lafayette. Gettysburg was defeated again after the Lafayette loss, but the Herd was thumped by Villanova. The cagers bounced back and snapped a Dickinson eleven game winning streak with a resounding 55-44 victory, before losing to Muhlenberg in the season's finale, 84-65.

The Women's Athletic Association underwent complete revision this year under the direction of Miss Marjory Kinney. Instead of sponsoring a strong inter-group sports program with a membership requirement based on a point system as was the policy in the past, W. A. A. now emphasizes an inter-class program in which all women students may participate, regardless of affiliation with an organized social group. All women are automatically members.

The old point system has also been changed. Points are given for inter-class competition only, whereas inter-group competition is rewarded for the individual on purely recreational basis, and for the group in the form of an annual accumulative award.

An innovation was the hunting lodge at Half-Way Dam, which was leased this year by the organization. This was open to any group of women students for week-end parties of skiing and skating in the winter, and swimming and hiking in the spring. Still a dream but nearing reality is the lodge which W. A. A. plans to build.

The governing body of W. A. A. is the Board elected by the women students which is composed of eleven members. Miss Kinney is adviser to the Board, and Miss Whitenight is the camp adviser.

ON NEW IMPORTANCE

The Women's Physical Education Department under the direction of Miss Marjory Kinney was the ever busy center of women's sports. Gym classes were compulsory for underclass women, but the sports program did not end with the Sophomore year. Those upperclass women who wished could participate in any of the intermural sports or in the clubs sponsored by W. A. A.

This year W. A. A. brought about the organization of various clubs that functioned as a nucleus for interest groups. These clubs: Fencing, Bowling, Badminton, Square Dance, Modern Dance, Tennis, and Archery were under the direction of a President and were responsible to the Vice President of W. A. A. who also served in the capacity of Club Chairman. The clubs enabled students to participate in an activity other than actual class work, and provided and stimulated interest in Upper Class groups. The clubs met once a week, and each girl was allowed to join any two clubs.

The freshmen had a three-hour program a week.

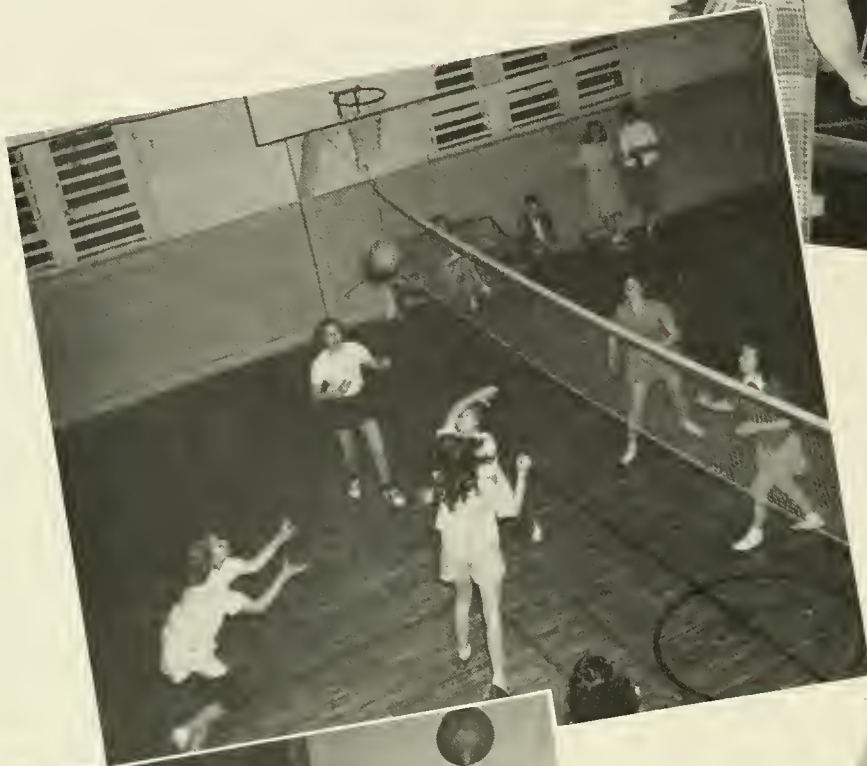

One period consisted of a three-part program of body mechanics, fundamental movement, and rhythms. For the other two periods the girls could choose any two sports offered in which they wanted to participate.

Sophomores fulfilled their two hour requirement by electing any two sports in season.

The range of sports was enlarged this year to include swimming and bowling. The girls swam at the Milton "Y," and transportation by bus was provided by the school. The bowling alley in Lewisburg was the headquarters of the bowling class. There was a large range of other sports which could be elected by the girls. Some of these were: tennis, golf, badminton, basketball, volleyball, square dancing, archery, softball, folkdancing, and tumbling.

The program was carefully arranged to help keep girls physically fit, and to give them a knowledge of the sports that they may be interested in after they leave school.

First Semester of a Second Century

From a basement room in the Baptist Church and a handful of students and teachers, Bucknell today is bulging and crowded, with large numbers unable to gain admission. A five million dollar Endowment fund is underway with one fifth pledged in advance. With the leadership and prestige of former President Marts, Roy Bostwick, Chairman, and Dr. Spencer, President, Bucknell has now the largest and most prominent group of Trustees in her entire history. Her faculty now exceeds a hundred members, and her student body over two thousand. She possesses twenty large buildings, and approximately twenty five smaller ones. In addition about 60 G. I. families and a few faculty families live in Bucknell Village. Bucknell lost some fraternities during the war but ten houses are going strong again, with others planned for the near future.

The College Inn, privately owned and operated, is located on campus, with co-operation and good will between the two institutions. The Inn contains seven apartments and four lines of business, and is almost exclusively patronized by our large Bucknell family. We are grateful to be associated with such a fine institution and strive to be worthy of its splendid moral and religious character.
